Hockenberry: Wong's Essentials of Pediatric Nursing, 10th Edition

MULTIPLE CHOICE

1. A nurse is selecting a family theory to assess a patient's family dynamics. Which family theory best describes a series of tasks for the family throughout its life span?
 - a. Interactional theory
 - b. Developmental systems theory
 - c. Structural-functional theory
 - d. Duvall's developmental theory

ANS: D
 Duvall's developmental theory describes eight developmental tasks of the family throughout its life span. Interactional theory and structural-functional theory are not family theories. Developmental systems theory is an outgrowth of Duvall's theory. The family is described as a small group, a semiclosed system of personalities that interact with the larger cultural system. Changes do not occur in one part of the family without changes in others.

2. Which family theory explains how families react to stressful events and suggests factors that promote adaptation to these events?
 - a. Interactional theory
 - b. Developmental systems theory
 - c. Family stress theory
 - d. Duvall's developmental theory

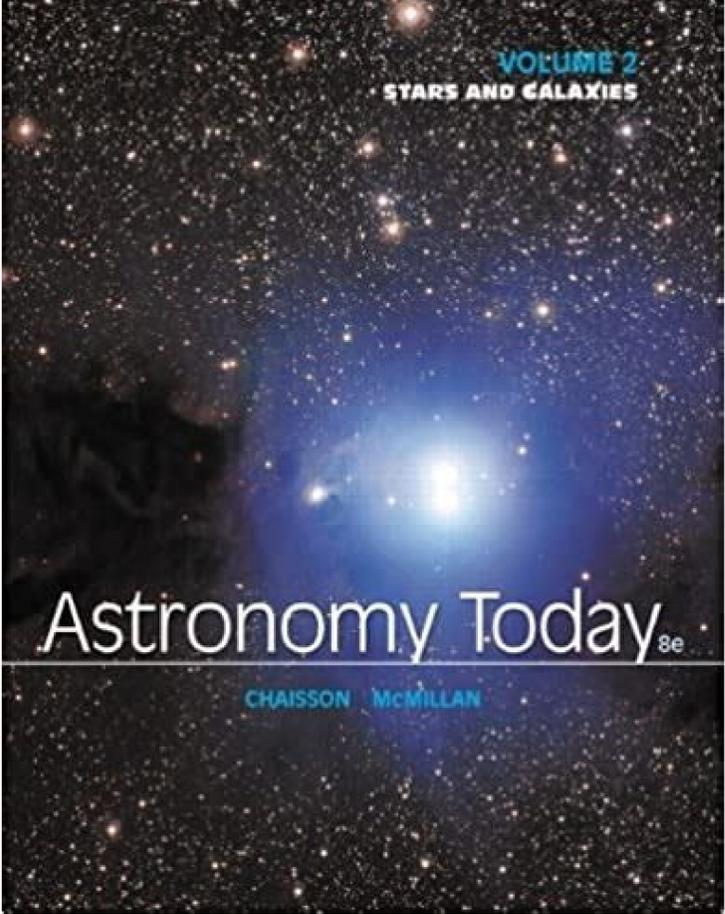

ANS: C
 Family stress theory explains the reaction of families to stressful events. In addition, the theory helps suggest factors that promote adaptation to the stress. Stressors, both positive and negative, are cumulative and affect the family. Adaptation requires a change in family structure or interaction. Interactional theory is not a family theory. Interactions are the basis of general systems theory. Developmental systems theory is an outgrowth of Duvall's theory. The family is described as a small group, a semiclosed system of personalities that interact with the larger cultural system. Changes do not occur in one part of the family without changes in others. Duvall's developmental theory describes eight developmental tasks of the family throughout its life span.
